Graphic Design and Exhibition Design Internships

The Children's Museum of Manhattan creates rich learning experiences for children ages 0 – 10 through our work at the museum and in the community. The Exhibition Department develops, designs and produces interactive environments where children can experiment and learn through play. The Graphics Design and Exhibit Design Interns will work together as part of the Exhibition team.

The Graphic Design Intern will design a variety of print materials for Education and External Relations including posters, brochures, invitations and postcards. The intern may also work on a variety of promotions using digital media including social media, the CMOM Website and email. Depending on the exhibition design schedule, the intern may also work on environment graphic design projects including scenic design, interactive component design, installation and signage.

The Exhibition Design Intern will work on various aspects of exhibit design and production determined by the strengths of the intern and the exhibition schedule at the time of the internship. Projects may include creating design renderings, mocking up interactive activities, resourcing materials, preparing digital files for production, taking part in installation and minor in-house production as necessary.

Qualifications: Enrolled in, or recently graduated from a college design program; excellent design skills; clean and accurate hand production skills; Graphic Designers must have working knowledge of InDesign and Exhibit Designers should have some knowledge of Vector Works. Optional working knowledge of Adobe Illustrator, Adobe Photoshop, and Microsoft Word are helpful. A talent for photography or illustration is a plus.

This is an unpaid internship.
